

Iowa State University Department of Economics

Friday, March 11, 2022 Next newsletter, March 25

Department Highlights

New Lence paper published

Sergio Lence, professor, has had his article, “When does voluntary coordination work? Evidence from area-wide pest management,” published in the American Journal of Agricultural Economics.

Hayes honored for 35 years of service to ISU

Dermot Hayes, professor, Pioneer Chair in Agribusiness, and Charles F. Curtiss Distinguished Professor in Agriculture and Life Sciences, was honored by Iowa State’s 25 Year Club for his 35 years with the university.

After three decades at ISU, Swenson looks forward to retirement

After a thirty-two-year career with Iowa State, David Swenson, research scientist, is looking forward to March 18, 2022, his last day in the department.

Hart on volatile grain prices

Chad Hart, professor, was quoted in a March 8 Successful Farming story, “Fluctuating Grain Prices Cause Co-Ops to Limit Buying.”

Swenson: Rising gas prices affect consumers

David Swenson, research scientist, was interviewed for a March 9 KFAB story, “Rising Gas Prices Could Affect Spending Habits.”

Econ student elected student president

Jacob Ludwig, economics senior, won the Student Government presidential election March 2, 2022. His running mate, Jaden Ahlrichs, global resource systems and horticulture senior, was elected vice president.

Follow us on FACEBOOK

Follow us on TWITTER

